

On October 2, 2018, Geidai Art Plaza was opened in the campus of Tokyo University of the Arts in Ueno, Tokyo.

The works of students, teachers, and graduates of Tokyo University of the Arts (Geidai) are exhibited and sold there.

This place is the so-called Dejima (*) of Geidai, where works of artists from 14 departments in two faculties are presented to people in society and the world outside the university.

In Dejima, there are works that cost tens of thousands of yen while a one-of-a-kind brooch is sold at only 1,000 yen. You will find not only works of art but also other unique items with the design of Geidai, such as original biscuits, marshmallows, and museum goods. Also, art books, comic books, and magazines can be found on the bookshelf.

Tokyo University of the Arts has only 130 years of history since its establishment immediately after the word "art" first appeared in Japan. Geidai Art Plaza is a place where artists who gather together at Geidai show their creative spirit.

"Creating" is connecting with someone somewhere and at sometime.

Special exhibitions are held according to themes nearly once every month.
 Something new and exciting is always happening.
 We hope that Geidai Art Plaza will be a fascinating encounter for you.

Dejima: In the Edo period when Japan was sealed off to the outside world, Dejima was the only place of direct trade with European and American countries.

Address: On the campus of the faculty of Fine Arts, Tokyo University of the Arts, 12-8 Ueno Park, Taito-ku, Tokyo 110-8714

Business hours: 10:00-18:00

Regular holiday: Monday (When Monday falls on a national holiday, Geidai Art Plaza is open on Monday and closed on Tuesday.)

* Geidai Art Plaza is closed for two days after a special exhibition finishes regardless of whether it is a regular holiday or not.